Good luck from Bovan. There will be the battery under the seat. If you replace it make sure not to discard the rubber tube that connects to the battery. This vents to gases produced the battery to the atmosphere. I would jump the vehicle from under the hood and drive it around to fully charge the battery before replacement. The positive jump terminal is on the passenger side under the hood. It is connected to the fuse box and has a red plastic cover over it. A good ground would be anything without and paint on it. Hope this helps. I have to get a jump and it starts no problem or it makes a clicking sound and every time I turn key it sucks juice from battery which causes it to die what can I do dealer says battery too small then says starter then says something else.

Please help Im a disabled woman Sometimes it wont turn over at all and Its right above the water pump, what is it and how do i replace it Please refer to CarGurus Terms of Use.
